SDG 8 Decent Work and Economic Growth

Decent work in safe and stable conditions is a vital component of helping people out of poverty, with the related aspects of reducing hunger and increasing health. The rise of precarious employment, modern slavery, and uneven growth has created threats to a sustainable future. Universities as employers can lead the way, as teachers can educate for the future, and as innovators can develop new and fairer ways of working.

As part of its ongoing efforts to connect educational outcomes with labor market needs, PUA's Faculty of Applied Health Sciences Technology hosted a remarkable job fair with the participation of major healthcare companies and institutions in Egypt.

The fair witnessed the attendance of elite representatives from hospitals, medical centers, and medical equipment and supplies companies, alongside faculty graduates and final-year students, who had the opportunity to communicate directly with recruitment officials and explore available job and training opportunities.

During the fair, Prof. Dr. Mohamed Etman, Vice President for Community Service and Environmental Development Affairs, emphasized the importance of PUA's role in supporting graduates and preparing them for the labor market, noting that the fair represents a successful model for integration between academic education and community needs. He added: "Our youth are the real wealth, and PUA takes responsibility for preparing distinguished cadres capable of competing and effectively contributing to the development of the healthcare sector."

The fair's program included numerous workshops and awareness seminars on job application skills, CV writing, and succeeding in personal interviews, which contributed to raising students' awareness and preparing them for the labor market in a practical manner.

Participants from students and institutional representatives expressed their appreciation for the excellent organization and effectiveness of the event, which represented a genuine opportunity for professional communication and exchange of experiences.

Notably, organizing this fair comes within the framework of PUA's commitment to supporting community development and graduating qualified cadres that meet the requirements of the evolving labor market in the health field.

Recycled Materials

Posted On: May 15, 2025

As part of PUA's second environmental campaign, "Green Pharos," the Architectural Engineering Department organized a student activity titled "Recycled Materials," aiming to foster teamwork and environmental awareness among students.

In this initiative, students repurposed surplus materials from the university's printing center—such as printing rolls and MDF boards—to design and construct an innovative two-story display unit for showcasing student projects within the department.

The activity took place in the Department's corridors and witnessed enthusiastic participation from students, faculty members, and staff, reflecting a spirit of collaboration and harmony within the department.

An Extensive Meeting with Tawasol Co.

Posted On: May 14, 2025

As part of its commitment to the “Green Pharos” strategy and advancing environmental sustainability, PUA’s Vice President for Community Service and Environmental Development Affairs, Prof. Dr. Mohamed Etman, held an extensive meeting with representatives from Tawasol, a company specializing in renewable energy solutions and smart technologies.

The discussion focused on enhancing the use of renewable energy within the university campus, particularly in areas such as solar panels and smart lighting systems. Attendees reviewed the progress achieved thus far in the “Green Pharos” initiative and its impact on reducing energy consumption and achieving the university’s environmental sustainability goals. The meeting also explored the potential for expanding the application of these modern technologies in the future to sustainably meet the campus’s growing energy needs.

An agreement was reached to develop a joint implementation plan that includes feasibility studies for renewable energy projects, including solar panels and smart lighting. Additionally, a joint follow-up committee will be established to ensure the execution of recommendations and the achievement of sustainable environmental objectives within the university’s plan.

The visiting team also toured the Faculty of Computer Sciences and Artificial Intelligence to assess the implementation of smart screens in lecture halls and the feasibility of establishing an integrated smart laboratory within the faculty.

During the meeting, Prof. Dr. Etman emphasized the importance of collaborating with specialized partners in the field of renewable energy, expressing PUA’s eagerness to continue enhancing the use of solar panels across its facilities to provide clean and efficient energy. He also highlighted the adoption of smart lighting systems to reduce waste and achieve higher efficiency in electricity consumption.

For their part, Tawasol expressed full readiness to support PUA in implementing its ambitious plans under the “Green Pharos” strategy, commending the university’s forward-looking approach to sustainability and the use of smart technologies.

Recycled Materials Workshop

Posted On: May 12, 2025

In alignment with its sustainability and inclusion commitments, PUA's Faculty of Arts and Design organized a series of eco-friendly art workshops at Taha Hussein Center for Students with Disabilities (Alexandria University), utilizing recycled materials. The event was held under the patronage of Prof. Dr. Mohamed Etman, Vice President for Community Service and Environmental Development Affairs, and Prof. Dr. Zeinab El-Demerdash, Dean of the Faculty, supervised by Dr. Aya Mohamed Fathi, Community Service Committee Coordinator, in collaboration with the Intellectual and Environmental Development Association and the Egyptian Union for Educational Policies and Research.

Participants from the People of Determination community crafted innovative artworks from recycled paper, including heritage-inspired models reflecting Siwa Oasis's cultural legacy, a creative redesign of Alexandria University's logo.

Dr. Mahmoud Farag, Head of the Center's Inclusion Unit, emphasized that "this initiative fosters social inclusion and environmental citizenship while showcasing the creative potential of People of Determination." The event aligns with PUA's strategy to strengthen its position as an eco-friendly institution within the UI Green Metric ranking.

Tourism's 9th Job Fair

Posted On: April 20, 2025

To encourage students to integrate into the tourism and hospitality labor market, PUA's Faculty of Tourism and Hotel Management hosted the 9th Job Fair. Held over two days at the faculty's premises, the fair featured the participation of several leading institutions in the tourism and hospitality sectors. It was attended by a distinguished group of university leaders, including Prof. Dr. Mahmoud Mohieldin, PUA's President; Prof. Dr. Mohamed Etman, Vice President; Prof. Dr. Mohamed Nassar, Dean of the Faculty; and Prof. Dr. Ghada Bassiouny, Vice Dean.

Students and graduates had the opportunity to engage with representatives from the participating institutions and explore available training and employment opportunities in an atmosphere of enthusiasm and keen interest. The event also included on-site job interviews conducted by visiting organizations, offering students the chance to secure professional roles in the tourism and hospitality industry. This reflects the faculty's commitment to creating tangible opportunities for its graduates in both local and international markets.

The first day's program featured orientation sessions on the nature of work in the tourism and hospitality sectors, as well as overviews of employment requirements and career advancement paths in these fields. The fair is part of the faculty's continuous efforts to link students with the labor market and to strengthen partnerships with major companies and institutions in the tourism and hospitality industries, with the aim of offering real career prospects for its graduates locally and globally

Green Businesses: From Idea to Success

Posted On: March 25, 2025

As part of its second “Green Pharos” campaign, PUA’s Faculty of Financial and Administrative Sciences held a distinguished seminar titled “Green Businesses: From Idea to Success.” This initiative aligns with PUA’s ongoing efforts to raise awareness about sustainability and environmental responsibility in the business sector. The event attracted a select group of students eager to engage with its insightful discussions.

The seminar featured a lecture by Dr. Ahmed Farouk, an accounting expert at the Economic Courts and an auditor at joint-stock companies. He explored the concept of green businesses and their pivotal role in achieving sustainable development. He also highlighted strategies for transforming innovative ideas into successful, eco-friendly projects that meet global environmental standards.

Additionally, he addressed key challenges facing entrepreneurs in this field, along with best practices for financing and managing sustainable enterprises.

The session saw strong engagement from attendees, who posed thought-provoking questions about sustainability mechanisms in finance and management and the role of institutions in supporting the green economy.

At the seminar’s conclusion, participants expressed their appreciation for this initiative, emphasizing its role in promoting a culture of green entrepreneurship. The event also reinforced PUA’s commitment to supporting sustainable development and fostering environmental responsibility within the economic community.
